

Allegory of The Dark Crystal

By Matthew P. Holbert

*There is a storm brewing in the affairs of men.
When the light is hidden, there is darkness.
The darker the storm the brighter the rainbow.
Rainbows mesmerize the already darkened mind.*

Seeing only rainbows and not the light, out of ignorance mankind destroys itself.

Who brings this curse upon mankind?

Introduction

This allegory is intended to not only shed light on the world in which we live, but also to bring that light to the forefront of our culture. In part 1 the author (who uses we as an alternate pronoun instead of I) describes in metaphor the mechanisms of mankind's physical, mental, and spiritual enslavement to authority. Part 2 will be dealing with the better world our hearts know is possible. Part 3 will involve a deeper understanding of the big truth of our collective role in creation. Part 4 deals with education and how we can use it to solve the problems of modernity. Part 5 is the action plan for how to get this new education culturally integrated into society, and part 6 is the politics of a self governing society (the result of actual education being implemented instead of information).

Part 1. The Dark Crystal

1. Metaphorically speaking, there is, in place of the fleshly heart of man, a crystal of illusion and worldly luster; his allegiance to his stomach, bodily comfort, and access to endless distractions, has led to his allegiance to money, authority, and the crowd. Long ignoring the virtue of allegiance to Life, God, and Earth. Become like an automaton, (a drone for his oppressor rather than the fractal of God that he self-evidently is) mankind is lost, and we intend to reclaim those who are lost--from the monstrous machine that mankind has invented.

2. God is the light, the truth, and the way. God is awareness, consciousness, or in other words the very "I AM" that is taken for granted as if it doesn't exist. Nothing rules me, for I AM is a no-thing. Nevertheless, this spiritual force is the very identity that impersonally experiences and impartially observes all of human existence (and all of general existence) simultaneously through fractalization. In still other words God, or rather the holy spirit called the Christ, is YOU, though you may not know it, and may take for granted that it is not so on a personal level.

3. The physical crystal that has replaced the spiritual heart of pure light through recognition of truth breaks the truth of God and replaces it with churches and governments and worldly powers, all of which project rainbows into the mind by creating others that are at odds with whatever particular sect (losing sight of the unity in "christ" or holy spirit, or consciousness, or I AM), causing people to believe they are less than what they are: colors, nationalities, religions, classes, ideologies, political parties, etc.

4. A rainbow of illusions dominates the brain of man, causing him to distrust and despise his brother, despite his better instincts. However, it is not by mere illusion alone that this deception is carried out. A person must be ignoring the principle of Christ consciousness, that "Christ" is a deeper consciousness stage from the all too common passive autopilot one many people regularly experience; one has to be separated from the source in order to be susceptible to the illusion of material separation over the reality of universal unity through the creator as a first cause of causes. Again, In order to be susceptible to such illusions, one would have to be lacking the understanding of Christ consciousness or Christ in You, or at an even more basic level one must be ignorant of natural law..

5. The above rainbow can only exist vibrantly enough to be mesmerizing when there is no ambient light (aggregate awareness), and so darkness is a necessary component to the effect that the rainbow has on the mind of the individual perceiving it. In other words, ignorance of God and a lack of cultural philosophy is necessary to drive rainbows of propaganda (lies and wickedness) into the mind in the first place.

6. The lattice of this dark crystal is composed of three sides and three angles. The government, the religion, the corporation (power, authority, and means), are the corrupted sides of the crystal—all of them obsessed with breaking the light in order to control the WE that is the ultimate God-force of this multidimensional plane called reality; but they alone cannot achieve this great task.

7. The education, economics, and ethics (beginning, middle and ends) of our society constitute the angles by which the light is actually broken. The resulting fragmentation and atomization of society constitutes the rainbow, which is the result of too many people living in ignorance of God in society: the darker the storm (of ignorance) the brighter the rainbow (of confusion). The first condition must be this darkness. These institutions break the truth (that God is The ALL) by withholding the truth, and then inventing reasons to have strife with one another—usually over superficiality or mindless distraction.

8. We become stuck in the ego and the belief in physical reality as all that is, but that is a mere ignorance of God; that is the suppression of the higher mind in the natural human perspective. By being so suppressed (domesticated) we lose sight of how and why loving our neighbors makes sense, or how and why freedom exists and what slavery is and why it's bad.

9. The perilous position of being in the captivity of the rainbow of illusion: race, class, religion, sexuality, nationality, political ideology etc is thus: All of these distinctions are there, there is legitimacy to the realization that the light contains such diversity, but do not lose sight of the light! In pursuit of the truth we have broken away from the light of universal truth and created a massive ignorance of God, which can only lead to tyranny and strife.

10. Tyrannical forces must suppress the mind in order to control the body, and to suppress the mind you must also banish the soul because that is the will and the spark of cosmic forces resulting in mind or awareness or consciousness or the Christ, the Buddha, the Tao. To suppress this vibrant and inherent quality of human potential, any sense of connection to that must be met with a secular cringe and disgust, because by seeing that we are more than just meat bags we can aspire to be more than the mere puppets or pawns to unseen masters that we've become.

11. Thus, a darkness looms over us as the rainbow drives us against our brothers and sisters, and towards a legitimate need to be something more, which is then corrupted by the sides of the crystal mentioned above, and further exploited by them to make money. The need to be something more can only be satisfied when the world knows the universal truth that God is the ALL (God is playing reality from atom to Adam) and the implications thereof (i.e. that we are born as avatars for divine incarnation, each and every, and thus WE deserve to be born into a beautiful, peaceful paradise).

12. The unity of all people despite such diversity (WE); the underlying unity of all life despite such apparent differences; the truth of the light bares with it an awareness of God, and thus a love of thy neighbor because you are both I AM, and thus cannot be otherwise but as brothers. Without this realization of unity in Christ consciousness, we lose sight of the power WE have as creators in this matrix called creation.

Part 2. Visions of Light

1. It is only by our trust in the government and its transactions that we have a system of money at all. However, were we to trust each other over governments, the power of love and trust would be the economic drivers of a new economy; an economy rooted in a cloud of trust and reciprocity--out of friendship: the cloud economy.

1.1 A heavenly world is based on trust and love, not money and debt. Money and debt are angles of doubt and differentiation that create a spectrum of wealth, which in and of itself sounds good until the limits to wealth are systematically loosened and the rich become all powerful...

2. Think of it this way, what's stopping the government from giving a gift instead of a tax to incentivize human activity out of love and abundance instead of fear and scarcity? When will we fight back in the war of the classes? The bully has us beat until we stand up and show unity. The world is too big for a handful of billionaires.

3. The benefit of such a system to the rich, however, is that a sane society would exist for their children to grow up in. And when education is conducted under this model, it can't help but be better than the standardized-testing-dependent form that it has taken--due to profit over perfection.

4. We have it in our power to make the world over again, but first we have to come to an understanding about truth that directly impacts our reality from being wage slaves to being free players of life. The difference is in the light: how we define God and how we then choose to relate ourselves to it. Know thyself and the truth of what you are shall set you free.

Part 3. Understanding the Truth

1. You either see the light or you don't. All too many are mesmerized by the rainbow that they cannot perceive the truth or its effects. The lies of separation and fear are projected into the collective mind through the television and the smartphone. This same rainbow is then rotated kaleidoscopically in the manifold media and then paraded around by the government and corporations constantly.

2. Unified, WE can move mountains at will, divided we may as well be digging our own graves. If we break away from the influence of the prism of control and confusion and discover for ourselves what is true, then and only then do we have a chance of creating hope in this century.

3. Defeating the new world economic order of the World Economic Forum and the foundations of imperialist capital (Rockefeller, Gates, Carnegie, Rothschild, etc.) depends heavily upon our ability, as a society, to recognize a threat as its happening and act accordingly: swiftly and precisely. But first we have to be on the same page.

4. There is a difference between the crystal and the rainbow it produces. The crystal is apparently solid, and consists of worldly things. But the rainbow is absolutely intangible, in fact one could say purely psychological. Therefore breaking the psychological bondage to the rainbow is the first and most practical way of breaking the darkness and thus dispelling the rainbow, which, in turn, would cause mankind to replace the crystal for the light once and for all and become wise to the truth: that God is within as without. Turning up the ambiance means simply bringing the truth of creation and its creator to a new psychological and philosophical dimension and popularity.

5. Fortunately, however, little is needed in this area as capitalism has done the job excellently for us by giving us video games. Video games are a literal metaphor for reality if we interpret them theoretically. Once we recognize that, we can see immediately how and why reality was created, and what our purpose in the scheme of things is.

Part 4. Education

Our purpose is simple: to be Christ's second coming by becoming Christ's ourselves. The only way to do this, however, is to practice the pentivium, a process of self mastery and self governance.

Purification (Therapy)

Consolidation (Study)

Exertion (Application)

Balance (Union)

Play (Causation/Flow)

1. The first stage of the pentivium is a purification. The detoxification of the body, mind and spirit starts with a knowledge of what is good vs what is bad and knowing how to turn the bad good and the good bad. Balance is key, but so is learning and applying knowledge. That is the pentivium in a nutshell.

2. This purification ought to take the form of a long term excursion into nature. The summers of yellowstone for instance. However, the purification must also consist of connecting to nature, which requires you to disconnect from artificial things that distract you from this natural connection we all share but forgot.

3. The next step is to take some kind of psychedelic substance, preferably naturally derived: ayahuasca or magic mushrooms. This will purify your mind and spirit if you are already meditating and if you aren't it will start you on the path if you have any sense about you.

4. Fasting, gratitude, and daily exercise help to purify the body, mind, and spirit by stripping away distractions, focusing the mind, and deepening our connection to our corporeal being, which is our most direct connection to nature.

5. However, more important is that a sustained metacognitive state be maintained throughout this process, meaning to reflect at every opportunity upon the thoughts and feelings you are having in the moment and analysing them critically to develop a higher, greater way of thinking.

6. This process then leads into the second stage of the pentivium: the acquisition of knowledge, particularly of a higher self. The I AM that animates all things is that higher self that men have called God. However, God is Mind. So we must go within to find the hidden treasure.

7. Allow me to introduce you to yourSELF. The personal you you know is only the temporary you. The deeper You that not even you know is eternal and ever-present. The little you is a part of a bigger but still YOU. GOD is the ALL. All in one, One in all. The deepest part of me is the deepest part of you, and there WE are the Christ.

8. This knowledge of Self can only be acquired on one's own. No one can tread on those waters for you. The purpose of these words is to unlock the latent potential that all too many have been doubting and denying and yet all the while pretending didn't exist when it's been staring at them in the face their entire lives.

9. Stage three is to apply the various techniques of raising the energy of the body from the root to the crown, thus becoming players of life, fully activated by the cosmic forces that give us life. In other words realize you are the I AM and you transcend the realm of space and time by becoming only space and time (i.e. embracing death in a healthy polarity with life).

10. This activation then requires the fourth stage, that of balance and self mastery in order to activate the fifth and final stage: self determination and sovereign dominion over one's own life (aka play).

11. Once one has become familiar with this process, they will soon realize that it is as dynamic as it is integral. One must integrate purity into everyday life, and thus into how knowledge is acquired and applied. Doing the above requires balance to be practical, and thus the game of life is played.

12. A person so liberated cannot be fit to be a slave. Moreover, this leaves the person hungry for new knowledge and the striving for deeper understanding. Development only begins as we master this process and begin to play life on our own terms and create community and civilization without tyrants or their governments.

13. Now ideally we should be organizing with other practitioners of the pentivium in order to liberate humanity from its invisible shackles. However, if no one else knows about this process it must be actively shared in order for life to really be played well.

Part 5. Cultural Visions

For this reason the author also developed the Hexivium: a process of world-centric transformation:

- Strategy: configure a plan of operation.
- Organization: formulate a message using available information.
- Education: deliver the formulated message to an audience.
- Synergy: converse and collaborate with the audience.
- Dissemination: create media and culturally relevant content to shake and create new establishments that make the old obsolete so that we can...
- Manifestation: transcend the old and build the new.

1. The active participation of as many people in this process as possible will determine its effectiveness but this has the potential to virtually change the world.

2. Think of it this way: life is a game and the quest is to free all the slaves and defeat the evil power. The slaves are those left in ignorance by the systems of power in place over them. The evil power is the status quo and the greed and pride of mankind.

3. If we only live once our lives should definitely be taken as if we are players in a videogame so that WE can create for ourselves the best paradigms and versions of our collective future as possible. The trouble is people want to be lazy because all of life's toil in this version are burdens that are ill compensated for. Compounded by fear, apathy, and a lack of vision; the outcome is clear: we won't see a change from the people rooted in this paradigm. What the petivium is about is manifesting a new paradigm in oneself enough to start creating serious change.

4. WE must create a situation where everyone is rich because the world is the gift for their contribution as opposed to being taxed and forced to work to live. When we give the gift of the world to our constituent contributions to each other, the very participation in the project of civilization becomes the currency, replacing trust with money. Who wouldn't want to contribute?

5. You would own everything and so would everyone else. Exclusive ownership of property being possible only when love and trust are included in the model. First, we can trust that there are more than enough houses to shelter every human being on earth; second that we can love one another enough to actually get those people into those houses and do what can be done to make their access for a good reason.

6. The poor and the enslaved can be reclaimed, but only when we realize that education must be the central focus of any truly civilized culture. The education we are specifically referring to is the Trivium. The classical liberal arts of grammar, logic, and rhetoric. To free the mind from the shackles of manipulation and fallacy, the trivium was conceived by Aristotle in order to liberate the mind.

7. It should be understood that one can treat each of its components: grammar, logic, or rhetoric, as being arts in and of themselves, each to be focused on independently, and yet each are dependent upon the others, reflecting back on themselves in integral ways.

8. Therefore, we could say that, as one practices the pentivium, both learning and teaching the trivium is an integral part of the process. The greatest gift that we can give to ourselves and our children is the power of critical thinking and logical understanding. Thus, as we practice the pentivium we also build a bigger overall process that we could call the way or IVIUM.

9. The need for conceptualizing a form of beauty that acts as a goal for human activity rests on a generation yet to come. It is for the coming generations that we actively grow and develop, yet we devour the present in order to do so. They inevitably inherit a wasteland.

Part 6. Politics

Turning this around requires an entire civilization of world citizens to stand up and say enough is enough; we stand with the light!

1. Replacing the old institutions with living ones without greed or pride will result in a crystal of light amplification as opposed to a dark prism to break the light. The three sides of such a brilliant crystal would be beauty, truth, and goodness, and its angles: education, economics, and ethics (when they are understood through the lense of natural or spiritual law) act to amplify the light as opposed to breaking it. Such an amplification of the light will result in a permanent culture of identity as I AM and what that means, as opposed to identity as a person or mask or pawn or slave to be controlled and taxed.

2. The powers that be are gradually cultivating a society of atomized individuals. The more separated and alienated from one another they can make us, the less likely we are to recognize the Sophia wisdom that the rainbow is an illusion, and that any separation between self and other is an illusion also. It is by keeping us in this illusion that the powers that be control and manipulate the crowd through the massive apparatus waged against them called the media.

3. Enslaving humanity requires their ignorance of their unity, because the spirit of God is in their unity--both in their unity of action and in their unity of thought and spirit (collective recognition that their I AM is one). So to atomize them is to pacify and ultimately enslave them. To convince the colony that it's a bunch of ants is to kill the colony. The power of the colony is the power of democracy in action as opposed to plutocratic oligarchs. Therefore, WE must take our power back!

4. WE, as the second coming of Christ, have it in our power to make the world in our image, and do so without shedding blood. The issue is that the oppressor wants to have an excuse to shed blood and has a cult of soldiers with a small percentage of die hard members that would turn on their fellow people if ordered to deter that possibility.

5. So, if one bee, or one individual takes on the hornet, the bee dies. And so no one man, not even one christ can kill the beast. The only thing that kills the beast is revealed to be the second coming, which is suppressed by fear of our collective will.

6. The second coming is like the lesson of the Japanese honey bee in response to the Japanese giant hornet. The hive lets the giant hornet reach a state of confidence in the hive, and then simultaneously pounce once the threat fully reveals itself. However, this requires a full recognition of the threat before it manifests itself, as well as a complete understanding of the self governing principles of underlying unity that are facilitated by nature's god. We have to see and act as one by common sense.

7. When we act as one we cannot be vanquished, and so it is imperative that love replace hatred, and trust replace fear, because our current unvanquishable form is that of a cancer where it should be a planetary organism. The very fact that we welcome the government and other organizations to regulate our lives today is indicative of the failure of our society to govern itself, and thus to love and trust.

8. There was a brief time in the dawn of the 20th century where these ideas were popular, but the reality is this was broken by the relentless wars and the rampant greed of that era. The idea that Christ is not a man but a state of mind, a depth of spirit, means that becoming Christ is our birthright, not some holy ideal reserved for a fabled messiah.

9. We are given the masquerade of holidays and told that it's good to be like christ, yet we have turned the christs mass into a commercial ploy. To love in unity consciousness, or Christ as we may call it, is to give and be thankful for the opportunity to give. If we get this we can expect the government to do the same but to a still higher ideal.

10. When WE hold the government and society to a higher standard than the average individual, and the average individual is like Christ, there may as well be no way to falter in the pursuit of perfection.

11. Perfection is the ever-present beginning that emanates from the single moment we call the present. Time is an illusion, yet another band of the rainbow. The moment you believe you are in time and that you are growing is the moment you believe you are a step away from perfection. Time is the effect of consciousness interacting with a perceptual apparatus, but only one moment exists in which all of matter is simultaneously moved by a single mover.

12. To believe the illusion of separation is to be in the dark, and the darker one gets the more savage and aggressive and hateful. To believe in the truth of unity is to be in the light, and the brighter one gets the more inquisitive and helpful and kind. When we divide ourselves according to the illusion of separation, we commit violence. When we act according to the truth of unity, we create vehemently. The two are not the same.

13. Greed and ambition (mammon) are the result of darkness and separation. To understand the unity of all life at a perceptual level demands a common respect for all life. The greed you feel is for creating a beautiful world, but it is misguided. You can create your own best life, but it will be at the expense of everyone else's. To have the best life is to have the best life for all, and all for The ONE, The ALL, The I AM.

14 The unity of everyone for a common cause can and will result in a total transformation of the global paradigm from a world government to a planetary organism-ship. Now more than ever a resistance from the whole of society is necessary. Were the powers that be to be met with a strategic mutiny and abandonment they would be forced to conform to our demands like the magna carta.

16. Yet the new empire of the great reset is forming before our eyes. It is one of surveillance and transhumanism. To stop it we need to be willing to fight and die for a cause greater than ourselves. No doubt the ones creating the new empire have such alignment. Divided we fall against their dictatorship. Together we can simply stand and cause their foundations to fall.

17. At this point in the story it's time to wake up and become alive. The zombie curse of the rainbow and the darkness that enslave our minds must be dispelled with light, with love, beauty and goodness. The psychopath in a suit and or lab coat isn't the leader anymore. We are!

18. It is only by embracing the light of unity that we can finally transcend the old world order and truly step into a new one with the help of the insights of the hidden past. No one but WE can emancipate the whole of humanity, but first we as individuals must learn that freedom is a universal truth born out of the essential fact of the corpus mundi and animus mundi (i.e. the body, mind and spirit/consciousness/I AM).

19. When we think of a world in which the people are most subjugated, it is the trait of being a Non-Playable Character (NPC) that stands out the most in modern society. Therefore, the free person is the one who stands out on a path of their own creation. Yet no matter what it is, they cannot be confined to a tool-like role; and even if they have been, don't let it put them in autopilot mode; and even if they do it's something they recognize either during or after.

20. Wanting to be a world citizen just intuitively makes sense. But the only semblance of world civilization has been established by egomaniac billionaires and oil dynasties... Its on those of us who want a world of freedom over slavery to change the world from a prison planet to a planetary organism. God Speed!
